Certified Relationship Coach Training

Building Intentional Relationships

From the moment we are born, connection with others is a natural instinct we all share.

As we travel life's path, we find many challenges in creating working relationships – with ourselves, intimate partners, family, friends and professional colleagues. Regardless of the type of coaching you offer – personal, business, leadership, health or family – focusing on relationships will always be an important part of the coaching process.

The Source Institute, a division of Source Point Training, provides comprehensive training in relationship coaching for professionals who coach, counsel, mentor or work in therapeutic environments. If you have a minimum of 60 hours of foundational training in any of these areas, you can be on your way to creating a specialty niche in relationship coaching. Certified Relationship Coach Training (CRC) is approved by the International Coach Federation (ICF) for 56 hours of CCE Units. This coach training also translates easily to leading coaching groups and facilitating workshops.

Certified Relationship Coach Training is designed to give you an extraordinary knowledge base in what drives the choices people make. They learn how to facilitate authentic connections by first and foremost examining the relationship with self, and then how they are with others.

Program Details

Certified Relationship Coach Training starts with an intensive, four-day weekend training, using the Certified Relationship Coach Training Manual, as well as the client Relationship Coaching Workbook. Through lectures, demonstrations and practice coaching that utilize the tracks over a 12-week period, students develop new skills, and are credentialed as a Certified Relationship Coach. The Certified Relationship Coach Training faculty serves as powerful mentors, sharing their passion for coaching clients to create intentional relationships in their lives.
